Visually appealing and organized GUI The program has an appealing user-interface, displaying all the commands and functions in side-panels, for ease of access, while the numerous buttons and sliders enable you to adjust the intensity of the used filters. Amberlight lets you open an existing image that you want to further work with, yet have the option of starting from scratch, by setting the preferred canvas size, the playback speed, the background color and the DPI value. Subsequently, you can use the 'Scene' panel to zoom in or out (you can also do this with your mouse scroll) and adjust the number of 'Fields' from the assigned slider. By pressing the 'Edit' button, a series of adjustable circles will appear on your canvas, allowing you to resize them however you please, if you drag their central points towards the inside or outside, or adjust modifiers. You can change their position, which in turn will generate different effects, by pressing the point in the center of the field, but you can also use the 'Random' button if you are willing to leave their size and location to chance. From the 'Contrast Curve' section, you can adjust the 'Base', 'Peak', 'Limit' and 'Opacity' levels, while the 'Filter' enables you to activate or deactivate the 'Tint' color and the 'Glow'. From the 'Palette' panel, you can customize the 'Hue', 'Saturation' and 'Lightness', as well as choose a preferred 'Gradient'. Additionally, Amberlight allows layer blending and comes with an integrated timeline panel that can help you gain control over the animation playback and keyframes.
